

Church and State in Constitutional Law and Politics
POLS 30739-01 (AMST 30437-01; HESB 30519-01)

| | Page(s) |
|---|----------------|
| 1. Lee Epstein and Thomas Walker, "Chapter 1: The Living Constitution" and "Chapter 2: Understanding the Supreme Court," from Constitutional Law for a Changing America: A Short Course, 3rd edition (Washington, D.C.: CQ Press, 2005), pages 11-56. | 1 |
| 2. Robert Booth Fowler, et al., "Theories of Religion, Culture, and American Politics," from Religion and Politics in America: Faith, Culture, and Strategic Choices (Boulder, CO: Westview Press, 2004), pages 291-313. | 25 |
| 3. Frank Lambert, "Chapter 4: Faith and Science: The Modernist-Fundamentalist Controversy," from Religion in American Politics: A Short History (Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press, 2008), pages 104-129, n. 260-262. | 39 |
| 4. Kent Greenawalt, "Five Questions about Religion Judges are Afraid to Ask," from Obligations of Citizenship and Demands of Faith: Religious Accommodation in Pluralist Democracies , edited by Nancy L. Rosenblum (Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press, 2000), pages 196-244. | 56 |
| 5. J. Budziszewski, "Chapter 3: The Illusion of Moral Neutrality," from The Revenge of Conscience: Politics and the Fall of Man (Dallas, TX: Spence Publishing Company, 1999), pages 39-54. | 83 |